

DAC Again Named to Washingtonian's 50 Great Places to Work

ARLINGTON, VA – October 22, 2009 – DECISIVE ANALYTICS Corporation (DAC) is pleased to announce that for the second time in a row they have been named one of The Washingtonian's 50 Great Places to Work.

Every two years, The Washingtonian sets out on a search to find the 50 best places to work in the Greater Washington area. Their criteria included such measures as: generous pay and benefits, challenging and interesting work, great work-life balance, opportunities to learn and grow, financial stability, commitment to charity and community, and the recognition and respect given employees. Companies in competition filled out extensive applications, however "final determinations relied heavily on the scores given by a company's employees," said The Washingtonian, as individuals from each company were anonymously surveyed. After reviewing hundreds of company applications and over 13,000 employee surveys, 50 companies stood out as being the best of the best.

DAC President John Donnellon says there are many keys to DAC's success. "There has to be solid strategic planning, and that should start when you're assembling your business team. We employ people for the long-term and make it a priority to build a creative, collaborative atmosphere."

"We are excited to be recognized as one of The Washingtonian's 50 Great Places to Work," said Ashley Zais, Chief of Corporate Communications. "It shows what an amazing company we have. Employees enjoy the work they do and the people with whom they do it." At DAC, success is attributed to their team of talented, motivated, and literally invested employee-owners. "Because we all own stock in the company, we work hard to see it succeed and are in turn, rewarded by the fruits of our labor," Zais says.

Because of the range of sizes and types of companies, there is no ranking within The Washingtonian's Top 50. Companies honored include trade associations, healthcare providers, nonprofits, law firms, government agencies, and more. This is the sixth time The Washingtonian has chosen Great Places to Work in the Washington, DC area. The feature dates back to 1999.
